This tax season Jeff Donahue is offering to do church members' 2022 taxes and PA Property Tax Rebates, free of charge. Jeff has been participating in the IRS's "Voluntary Income Tax Assistance" program for 11 years.

You would make an appointment with him and meet at Bergstrasse where you would review your tax information with him. The taxes would be prepared by Jeff and reviewed by another VITA volunteer, per IRS rules. Another meeting would be arranged where the printed documents would be signed. These forms would then be e filed to the proper Federal and State departments. You would need to mail Local tax forms and the PA Rebate forms.

From the Pastor's Desk

Three years ago news outlets were talking about a coronavirus wreaking havoc around the globe. Less than two months later the coronavirus or Covid-19 as it became known as landed on our doorsteps, sending people into a state of panic. Unsure how to appropriately respond, the world we knew came to an immediate stand still. What was familiar was now halted for at least the first two weeks until medical personnel and elected leaders could assess next steps while agencies began to consider their next steps to keep people as safe as possible. We had no idea how much our lives would change, nor did we know how long our lives would be impacted by Covid-19.

When will everything be normal again, was the cry of the people. What was familiar began to slowly reappear with the introductions of a vaccine – businesses reopened with new health safety protocols, many restaurants changed how they served the public, ordering essentials became the norm, zoom became a household word for meetings. Face masks were seen less and less. Busy traffic patterns returned. Many people soon acknowledged living into a 'new' normal, whatever that meant, life was different. Life changed, but how have we changed. Change is often resisted because the familiar is comfortable. Eventually change becomes the new normal. Will we know when normal has fully arrived? (Think about something that has changed in your lifetime that now you can't imagine living without)

Faith communities of all traditions and size changed because of the coronavirus pandemic too. What was may no longer be. Religious affiliation has been declining in the United States since the 1960s. For many people who identify as Christian, especially under the age of 45, the Church* is no longer relevant in their daily lives. The Church was looking for a 'new' normal well before March 2020. Does the Church know what it is or has been looking for? I sense the Church was looking for something new with old ideas. Not wanting to shed what was known, the Church often chooses to consider new ideas based on experience, with little regard for what is really going on in the present. No matter how much you try to disguise something old with new clothes, it soon loses its appeal.

The Church, in my opinion, are people who experienced a life transformation from death into a resurrection and who continue to celebrate their newfound hope by engaging with others to find their new hope that will set them free of their past. The Church IS all about resurrection! Can you imagine if all our ministry initiatives were focused toward offering 'resurrection' to others (the least, the lost, the lonely, the left behind)? Can you imagine a Church that shows the presence of the Holy One, the Divine, God in EVERYTHING? Can you imagine relationships growing out of love for each other? Can you imagine a Church that is visible through their various ministries so much that others notice and want to share in offering hope?

Our congregational Leadership Council has committed to engage a Stewardship initiative for 2023. Stewardship (or Generosity) is about sharing from our abundance (time, talents, treasure) so that others might experience God aka love. Bergstrasse is at a crossroads that will shape the future of our effectiveness as a missional congregation. We know where we've been, where do you see your faith community moving toward in the next year, two years, three years? Stewards committed to sharing love in the world are best served with a process that is defined by their vision for ministry – the how's that lead us to support our mission "To widen the community of people who know, love and follow God" – a community of people beyond our walls.

I encourage you to be present for our Community Conversation on Sunday February 5, immediately following worship, where we will hear Pastor Mark Luscombe share his experience of leading people to be faithful stewards of our abundance.

**Church refers to the larger community of followers of Jesus, however, you can also substitute Church with 'the local congregation'*

Peace,
Pastor Jim

Planning for the Lenten season has begun!

Bergstrasse will use 'ASK, a Lenten series' to outline our Ash Wednesday worship, Sunday worship and Holy Week worship experiences.

CALM – Cocalico Area Lutheran Ministries – Midweek Lenten Worship services begin Wednesday March 1. Offerings to benefit Disaster Relief Mission Trip to Houston, TX.

LENT When we read scripture carefully, we discover questions everywhere. Hundreds of questions. Questions are created in the Garden of Eden. In the Gospel of John, the first thing Jesus says to someone after his resurrection is a question.

Like people, these questions come in every type. Some are pesky. Some prefer to hide in the shadows and never be noticed. Some shout loudly, repeatedly, and beg attention. Some walk with us to the grave. Similarly, like people, once you start engaging questions, you quickly discover how hard they are to understand. Questions are hard to pigeonhole. They defy stereotyping. And no matter how hard we like to think they can stand alone; they almost always require some kind of relationship.

Once you start noticing questions, once you start looking for them in the lectionary, you see them everywhere. Everyone has one, even if they keep it in their back pocket or tightly trapped behind their teeth. Biblical people have plenty of questions, too. So what can we do with that?

Here's our answer: this series called Ask. In this Lenten season, you'll find something for every person who's ever had a question about their faith.

CALM – Cocalico Area Lutheran Ministries

A cluster of seven Lutheran congregations in North Lancaster Conference will again offer Wednesday Lenten Worship services beginning March 1st at 7:00 pm. Each service is designed for sustained reflection on the gospel in the context of contemplative prayer, readings, silence, and song.
